

Author Biographies

Laynie Browne (born 1966, Los Angeles) is an American poet. Her work explores notions of silence and the invisible, through the re-contextualization of poetic forms, such as sonnets (Daily Sonnets), tales (The Scented Fox), letters (The Desires of Letters), psalms (Lost Parkour Ps(alms)) and others.

Hilda “H.D.” Doolittle (1886-1961) was an American poet, novelist, and memoirist.

Devon Fick is the author of The Lankville Daily News and the 2012 book Results of Interest from the Pondicherry Association, published by Demons Press. He provides support to the Director of Communication and Outreach and the Assistant Director of First-Year Experiences. He lives with his wife, Brandon, in the Whispering Pines Apartments complex in Towson, Maryland.

Chris Fritton is the former Studio Director of the Western New York Book Arts Center. A poet, printer, and fine artist, Fritton has over a decade of experience writing, printing, and making his own books, in addition to collaborative efforts with other authors and artists. Recently (2014) he was selected as a panelist to judge the New York Foundation on the Arts Fellowship in Drawing, Printmaking, and Book Arts. He co-founded the highly-acclaimed Buffalo Small Press Book Fair with Kevin Thurston in 2007, and has been organizing the fair solo since 2009 (the Fair is now in its 10th year). Currently Fritton is working on a brand new project called The Itinerant Printer, where he plans to visit over 100 letterpress print shops throughout 2015 & 2016.

Adam Golaski is the author of Color Plates and Worse Than Myself. He edited The Problem of Boredom in Paradise: Selected Poems by Paul Hannigan. Visit Little Stories for more.

Eric Gelsinger is the editor of Poets' Fiction.

Zachary Keebaugh wrote this when he was a night auditor at the Rodeway Inn in Eau Claire, WI and Eric Gelsinger kind of juggled it together. It's almost like a story. The true story is they hair-headed belled them belled the hotel rooms...

Ric Royer is a writer of performances and performer of writings. He is the artistic director of The Psychic Readings Company in Baltimore, Maryland.